Legends drop in for Mainly match

TOYAH SHAKESPEARE

WA football legends Shaun McManus and Dean Kemp defied gravity when they dropped in on Subiaco Oval to raise awareness for the Chris Mainwaring Legends Match for Telethon.

McManus, a former Dockers' player and current Nova 93.7 host, and former West Coast star Kemp tandem-jumped from a plane as a precursor to the third anniversary of the tribute match next month.

"I was fine initially in the plane, but the edge was terrifying," McManus said.

McManus said he missed AFL but knew his time was up and is keen to play with the older and slower players showcased in the match.

West Coast legends will form the OWLS — standing for Older Wiser Larger Slower — including David Wirrpanda, John Worsfold, Scott Cummings, Peter Matera and Brett Heady.
